State Farm offers entry-level positions in customer service and claims areas. These positions are in-person and currently they are operating a hybrid work model. The advantage of these entry level claims and customer service positions is that is where you will learn the most about the company, its products, and how things work, which will help determine which roles you may want to advance into. Because they offer all necessary training for entry-level positions, no experience in insurance is necessary. Some positions may require customer service experience. They also have a generous college tuition benefit and a company culture that encourages professional development.
